But big isn't the only beautiful; sometimes one man, sitting virtually immobile in a chair for more than an hour, can hold you spellbound, too, as he tells of his father's downfall – that leads, in turn, to his own.

In Paul Sellar's powerful, pungently told revenge drama 2Graves, first seen on the Edinburgh Fringe this year and now deservedly transferring to London, Jonathan Moore recites this bold, brave verse drama with a rhythmic intensity.
